

Robin Reid wins Tour of Himalayas in Pakistan

Thursday, 20 September 2007

Robin Reid won the general classification of the Tour of Himalayas in Pakistan, a three day mountainbike stage race. The race was in the "outskirts" of the Himalaya, on altitude. The highest point of the race was the the Barbusa Pass at 4200 meters altitude.

The Tour of Himalayas was a fundraising event for the Khagan Memorial Trust, for the building and maintenance of a school for the children that got struck by the earthquake in Pakistan. More information (donations are welcome) www.kmt.org.pk

Robin Reid won earlier this year already the 17 day Tour of Pakistan.
